Lost in His Woods: The Complete Works Penelope L'Amoreaux

She woke alone and cold, close to death in the snow. No memories of how she came to be stranded in the icy Siberian wood. No chance for survival on her own. He saved her and brought her into his secluded sanctuary. When she couldn't even remember her name, he gave her one: Clare. He gave her food and shelter, but this guarded stranger, her reserved savior, Tolik, wasn't giving her what she craved: human contact. Clare's intrusion into Tolik's private world forces his dark secrets into the light. He offers to help her remember who she is in a unique... and potentially dangerous way. His mastery of pleasure and pain intrigues Clare, despite his warnings regarding his own sadistic inclinations. His promise of enlightenment is too great to turn down, and she willingly submits. Now, Tolik risks losing control while Clare is in danger of falling for the man who seems to be pushing her away. How far would you go to get your memory back? Would you surrender yourself completely into the hands of a seductive sadist, who's self control balances on a knife's edge? Tolik and Clare's journey take them through dark, sensual depths; heartbreak; and ultimately a thrilling adventure that neither of them were prepared for. As her memories unfold, they discover some things are best left hidden For Clare, remembering could be the thing that brings them together. Or get her killed. So... how far would you go?
