The One who Bought Shalom: the Mission of Yeshua the Messiah Deborah Renda Shields

The Jesus we usually hear about is One with the Godhead, worker of miracles, and Savior of our souls. But for 33 years, He was also enclosed in flesh and blood, with relationships, with memories and emotions. He came not only to save us from our sin, but to example for us, in human condition, the way to live as children of God who hold His Kingdom within us. His name was Yeshua, and He was descended from the Jewish kings. His immersion in the culture and traditions of Israel, and devotion to Torah, are evident in the framework of the Gospels. Some things He said and did can only be understood in light of Jewish tradition, and some of the seeming confusions and contradictions of the Gospels disappear when we read them in this way. Are you lonely, sad, tired, angry, defamed, frightened or in pain? He knows how you feel because He was here, and suffered all of these. We can embrace and imitate Yeshua as One who knows how to please our Father in human condition.
