You will carry this trick with you whenever you want to do some magic. It is a stand-around trick in that you can do it any time you are standing around and someone wants to see some magic. It is good for cocktail parties, hanging around in a bar, waiting to see a movie, and so on. It is great in their face magic that happens in their hands. In addition, it is a powerful table-hopping trick. It would do well in front of a number of people as with parlor magic. Some pocket tricks are entertaining, cute, or funny. This trick falls into the category of mind bending. The thing about this routine is the powerful effect it has on unsuspecting audiences. It shocks them into immobility. The person helping with the trick will not see it as a trick or an illusion. It simply shuts down their thinking process. In this effect, six quarters are borrowed. A spectator is asked to form a bag with a handkerchief. They hold the corners of the handkerchief tightly in their hand. Then, the borrowed quarters are rubbed through the cloth in the middle of the handkerchief. The spectator ends up holding a bag with six quarters in it. There is no explanation. The helper is literally stunned. He will not move. Often, someone else will remove the handkerchief from the helper's hands to see if the borrowed coins are in the bag. This trick requires skill. The basic move is of medium difficulty. Extensive practice is required to master the routine. If you decide to go with this trick, you will have respect from any fellow magician as well as convincing friends that you have magic power.
